When it comes to heart care, the gold standard of clinical excellence is three stars. Harrison Medical Center's award-winning cardiothoracic surgery program has achieved this highest category of quality by The Society of Thoracic Surgeons for overall performance.

The rating, designated for the data reporting period of July 1, 2008 to June 30, 2009, puts our program in the top 10 percent of nearly 900 hospitals across the nation.

The Society of Thoracic Surgeons, three-star rating is a composite score that represents new standards in the assessment of clinical performance based on 11 national quality measures.

Our successful outcomes are the result of advanced technology and a team of experts from board-certified surgeons to specially trained nurses who have performed more than 1,000 open-heart surgeries. Cardiothoracic surgeons R. Christopher King, MD, and William H. Reed III, MD, lead this exceptional team.

Patients consistently rate our heart surgeons and heart care unit in the 99th percentile, according to Press Ganey patient surveys.

We provide diagnosis and treatment tools for complete heart and vascular care, cardiac catheterization labs, a peripheral vascular lab, an electrophysiology lab, interventional cardiology, and three dozen invasive and non-invasive heart and vascular procedures.

We're also opening the Heart and Vascular Center at Harrison in July 2010 to bring our community a full scope of minimally invasive cardiovascular procedures.

Harrison Medical Center is a not-for-profit hospital with five locations to serve the Kitsap and Olympic peninsulas in Western Washington. Learn more at 866-844-WELL or visit harrisonmedical.org.
